DEERING SPEAKER AT COUNTY FARM BUREAU MEETING AT NORWAY

European agriculture and agricultural education as he saw it last winter will be the subject of Dean Deering's address at the annual meeting of the Oxford County Farm Bureau at the Norway Opera House at 7:30 P. M.

A native of Denmark, in this county, Dean Deering spent four months studying agricultural education in the Netherlands, France, Portugal, Greece, and Austria, and visiting briefly in several other nations. He and the members of the team making the study submitted reports giving suggestions for improvement and expansion of the Extension Services in Europe.

Because of his thorough knowledge of European Agricultural Education the Dean was called to Washington, D. C., in October to preside at a week of sessions acquainting visiting European farm officials with Extension work and the Land-Grant Colleges of the United States. At that time he worked with many of the same officials whom he knew in Europe.

This experience and study qualifies Dean Deering to present an interesting, lively, and up-to-date picture of the agriculture of Europe, says Gerald H. Bessey, of Buckfield, president of the Oxford County Farm Bureau. The Dean will also show colored slides he took in the various countries he visited last winter.

President Bessey, in urging all Oxford County people to attend, pointed out that the meeting will be of interest not only to farmers, homemakers, and rural residents, but to businessmen, educators, and others in the county. He said the meeting is open to everyone interested.

Dean Deering heads the three agricultural divisions of the University of Maine. They include the College of Agriculture, the Agricultural Experiment Station, and the Agricultural Extension Service. He began extension work as the first county agent in Kennebec County and has been with the Extension Service and the University for 38 years. He has received numerous awards and degrees for his distinguished service to the agriculture of Maine and the nation.

Other features of the annual meeting this year will be election of Farm Bureau officers for 1951, presentation and adoption of the program of work in agriculture, home economics, and 4-H club activities and announcement of the results of the campaign for Farm Bureau members. Square meals for health awards will be presented to the women's Farm Bureau groups.

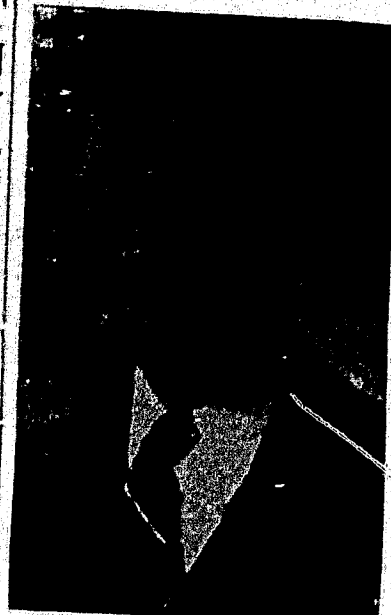

A style show will be presented by Farm Bureau women who have been taking part in the Extension Service clothing projects. The Hungry Hollow 4-H Club of South Paris will present a demonstration on "Insect Control in the Home Garden." Taking part will be Richard Ripley and Ernest Maberry.

Men's exhibits will be on the theme of "Labor-Saving Equipment." The women's exhibits will be presented by the Farm Bureau groups doing the most outstanding work in the various fields. They will include displays of the model U-type kitchen, Extension nursery groups, packed school lunches, Swedish weaving, Make a Dress School, and Collar and Necklines Finishes. The exhibits were among the best at the Oxford County Fair in September.

Four-H clubs in the county will be competing for the honor of having the best exhibit go to the annual State 4-H Club Contest at the University of Maine in December. Many exhibits are expected.

Thirty year members of the Farm Bureau will be honored at the supper to be served at the Norway Grange Hall at 6:30 P. M. They will be guests of the Farm Bureau and sit at the head table with Dean Deering and the Farm Bureau officers. Ten men and women have been Farm Bureau members for 30 years. Plans will be presented to 20-year members at the annual meeting and 20 year members will receive certificates.

Entertainment will include piano selections.

LIV. FALLS SMEARS GOULD ELEVEN, 39-0

Goold Academy received its worst beating in many years last Saturday when Livmore Falls ran rampant over the Huskies to the tune of 39-0. The third period proved the downfall of the Huskies as a fumble by Goold was recovered by Livmore and returned 80 yards for the second TD, as Goold was threatening to tie the score.

Two more scores came before the half ended and the "Blue and Gold" trailed 28-0 at half time. The winners scored once in each of the last two periods to give Goold its worst drubbing in years. This Saturday the Huskies travel to Wilton where they again run up against tough opposition in undefeated Wilton Academy. Two weeks ago Wilton and Livmore played to a 7-7 tie.

HARRY B. MCKEEN

Harry B. McKeen of North Lovell was killed last Thursday night as he removed a rifle from his car at the store of his son-in-law, Wilbert Harriman, at North Lovell.

He was born in Stoneham, June 28, 1870, the son of Loring and Lydia McAllister McKeen, and received his education in his native town.

Mr. McKeen served as selectman in the towns of Albany, Stoneham and Lovell, on the school committee in Stoneham and Lovell, and road commissioner in Stoneham. He was a deputy sheriff six years and a member of the 93d and 94th legislatures. He was a member of the Legislative Research Committee, a meeting of which he was to attend Friday.

He was a past master and charter member of Kezar Lake Grange at North Lovell, and had been a master of Oxford-Cumberland Union Pomona and a deputy of the Maine State Grange. He was a member of the National Grange and Delta Lodge, F. & A. M. He was also director and vice-president of the North Waterford World's Fair and a director of the West Oxford Fair.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Katherine Hubbard McKeen, six daughters, Mrs. Winnifred Blackford, Norway; Mrs. Sarah Grover, East Stoneham; Mrs. Irene Bachelder, Winter Park, Fla.; Mrs. Muriel Brown, Norway; Mrs. Hattie Harriman, North Lovell; and Mrs. Hester Mann, East Stoneham; a brother, Charles McKeen, of Norway; 18 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

MISS FLORENCE M. YOUNG

Friends of Miss Florence M. Young, a native of Bethel since an early age, were saddened to hear of her death at New England Baptist Hospital, Boston, Saturday, Oct. 28, following an illness of several months.

Miss Young was born in Sherbrooke, Que., April 5th, 1904, the daughter of the late Lewis Edward and Mary Jane Young, she came to Bethel at the age of ten months receiving her education in the Bethel schools and Goold Academy, where she graduated in the class of 1922, writing the class ode. She went from there to the Massachusetts General Hospital where she graduated in the class of 1923.

For about four years she did private nursing, leaving it to become the private secretary and companion of Mrs. Elizabeth Hayward.

Longwood Towers, Brookline, Mass., with whom she made her home ever since.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, coming from the many friends she had made in the various states she had visited with Mrs. Hayward, for they traveled extensively.

Funeral services were held in All Saints Episcopal Church, Beacon St., Brookline, Mass., Monday, Oct. 30th. Memorial services were also held at Bethel, Wednesday, Nov. 1, at the Greenleaf funeral home.

Burial was in Woodland Cemetery.

Miss Young leaves two sisters, Mrs. James Spinney, Bethel, and Mrs. William Danforth, Portland. Two brothers, William, Locke Mills and Archie, of Bethel, also several nieces and nephews.

PLAN VARIED PROGRAM FOR B. G. S. MUSICAL DECEMBER 11

Work on the musical to be presented by the pupils of Bethel Grammar School is progressing smoothly. The musical groups have been selected and work on the words has been the activity for the last week. Plans for stage costs have been discussed and it is felt certain they can produce a visit from Rudolph, the Red-nosed reindeer and all a musical journey, "Over the Rainbow" to another excursion being planned several other colorful scenes are in process of being planned. The students wish again to extend an invitation to all to attend on the evening of Dec. 11, at the William Bingham Gymnasium, at 8 o'clock, for an evening of musical entertainment.

At this time the school wishes to apologize for not being able to hold an evening open house session for American Education Week, Nov. 6-10. Very crowded conditions make it impractical. We would like to extend an invitation to all parents and friends to visit at any time the regular school sessions.

North Fryeburg, Oxford Clubs Win Awards at County 4-H Exhibition

North Fryeburg and Oxford clubs received the New England Home-stead awards as the first year clubs making the most progress during 1950 at the Oxford County 4-H Club Exhibition. Several hundred 4-H members, leaders, and friends attended the event at the Association Hall in South Paris, on Saturday, October 21.

Winning first year clubs were the Sunshine 4-H Club of North Fryeburg, and the Oxford Hustlers Club of Oxford. The awards consisted of five dollars each.

Honors as the outstanding 4-H club in Oxford county went, for the fifth consecutive year, to the Canton Busy Workers. This group received the plaque donated by the Norway Advertiser-Democrat. The second place plaque given by the Oxford County 4-H Leaders' Association was won by the Buckfield Busy Bees Club. The third-place club, the East Bethel Lucky Clover, received a certificate. Fourth and fifth places, respectively, went to the Hungry Hollow 4-H Club, of South Paris, and the East Bethel Early Risers 4-H Club.

Oxford County's representatives to the annual State 4-H Club Contest at the University of Maine, on December 28, 29 and 30, were announced. This high honor went to David Marston, of East Waterford; James Washburn, of South Paris; Merle Kimball, of Canton; Betty Coffey, of South Paris; Gerald Harrington of Bethel; Maxine Mills of Porter; Amy Haggood of South Paris; Olive Conant of Canton; Marianne Percival of Buckfield; and Shirley Bartlett of Bethel.

Ernest Haskell, of Augusta, president of the Maine Magicians Society, entertained the 4-Hers with feats of magic. The use of the theater was provided through the courtesy of its manager, Earl Pierce. Herbert A. Spilke, Leonard, Oxford County Agent, served as master of ceremonies, and Mrs. Emma West, County Registrar of Deeds, extended a welcome to the 4-H delegation. Sandra Wilcox, of the Busy Workers 4-H Club of South Paris, responded for the 4-H members.

Rev. R. R. Wentworth, Methodist minister in Norway led community song as he did 21 years ago at the County Exhibition. Mrs. Irene Haggood of South Paris, Oxford County 4-H Club Project Leader for the Farm Bureau, was in charge of registration.

Alphus Jackson of Oxford, Superintendent of livestock at the Oxford County Fair, presented the fair Showmanship trophy to Lauretta Turner, of Canton, who won the championship.

The Norway-Paris Kiwanis Club presented awards of $750 each to outstanding 4-H members in the various projects. The eight winners will also be special guests at a Kiwanis supper and meeting later in the year.

The winners were Eleanor Carter of Buckfield, and Carolyn Foster, of East Waterford, in Bethel; Abby Haggood, of South Paris, and Peggy Perham, of West Paris, in Canton; David Marston, of East Waterford, and Franklin Hall, of South Paris, in dairying.

James Washburn, of South Paris, and Wendall Hall, of South Paris, in gardening.

Cash prizes donated by various commercial concerns were awarded to outstanding 4-H club members in certain projects. The Hazel Atwood, of Canton, won the prize in canning award won by Maxine Mills, of Porter; Olive Conant, of Canton; and Barbara Pappan, of Canton, placed in that order in the Russell Miller Milling Company food preparation contests.

Top in the Withmore Company dairy competition were Norris and Olive Conant of Canton. The winners of the H. K. Webster Company bird raising or poultry management awards were Allen Percival of Buckfield and Amy Haggood of South Paris.

Judges for the various awards and for scoring the scorecards, were County Agent H. A. Leonard, and Home Demonstration Agent, Ann Harmon.

Donald Christie Jr. suffered a broken leg Tuesday noon when he fell over a cart on the sidewalk at Bryant's Market while running home from school.

My office will be closed from Saturday morning until Monday, Nov. 13.

Who'll Be Next

What would you do if tomorrow the Federal government were to announce a plan through which it would become your boss, setting forth the new regulations and conditions under which you would henceforth work and the standard salary or wage all people in your occupation would be paid? You wouldn't like it. You'd no doubt protest in every way you could. Most adult Americans have observed and even had some direct contact with political management and political regimentation. Very few would want a political bureau or ward leader to take over their occupation, business or profession.

Of course, if I'm a plumber and you're a butcher and the political bureau were to take over the butchers and the livestock industry so we plumbers can have more meat to eat, and at little, if any, cost, that might be a horn of a different color at first glance. Until I'd had time to think twice, it might get my favorable attention. The butchers wouldn't like it, but of course they're outnumbered.

Upon thinking the thing through, I'd know the plan was a con-man for the Socialists. That after taking over the butchers and the livestock industry they'd have to take over the farmers and the feed mills because they're a part of the livestock industry, and the railroads and truck lines because they're necessary to transport both livestock and feedstuff, and automobile manufacturers and box car and locomotive industries because they make the vehicles of transportation, and the construction industry which builds the plants to house the box car and auto production lines and the "oil" the plumbers' for who else would put pipes in those manufacturing plants to make them operate.

That's what is happening in England. There the Socialist-Labor Party used medicine instead of meat as the first persuasive come-on though they also promised, as all Socialists do, "fair shares" of meat and bread and butter for everyone without compensating effort. But the "fair shares" turned out to be hardly more than sustenance rations.

Results Warn Us
Before the English people had thought twice, the politicians and bureaucrats had taken over the profession of medicine and the physicians for their compulsory health program which, they said, would not cost anybody much of anything. Then the Socialists went on from there. They're taking over the steel industry now because everything else they're socialized has they point out, some direct or indirect dependence upon this basic metal. A great many English people still haven't thought twice. They continue to live in a miserable Socialist society, propped up by American dollars, blindly hoping for economic miracle.

In America, the political "medicine men" are proposing a compulsory health program which would socialize, or "nationalize" the American medical profession. Most Americans already have thought twice on this scheme and had refused to be taken in. But the entire left-wing press and a number of influential politicians and bureaucrats are keeping up a huge flow of propaganda for the sickening, far-reaching Federal medicine program.

Freedom Is At Stake
Our hypothetical butcher didn't want to become a pawn of the Socialists. Neither does the American doctor. The medical profession is fighting back. And in their fight every American citizen, young and old, has a stake — his individual freedom. If the Federal govern-

Criticism of Others Is Depressing

DO YOU GET a certain kind of enjoyment out of criticism—the criticism you expend on others? Well, you may think you do, but check up on yourself a little later. Your emotional attitude will compare to that of the man who takes a drink to stimulate him. Sure, he feels stimulated momentarily. But since alcohol is really a depressant, he feels even lower before the effect really wears off than he did before he took the drink.

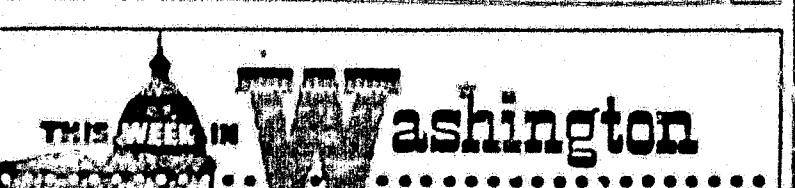

Mrs. Mary Ellis, Carthage, Missouri, says three years ago she was not a particularly happy young woman. She didn't know why, for she had a good husband, two nice youngsters that any parent could be proud of, good-looking, good in their studies and the picture of health. They could live as well as anyone in their community. There was nothing to make her unhappy so she should have been very happy. But the fact remained, she wasn't.

One day she attended a lecture in her church. The speaker made a remark that stayed with her after she got home. He said that people who criticized others, just as a matter of conversation, were jealous people.

That evening she sat on her porch with her husband. Friends, neighbors and casual acquaintances passed. She remarked on every one of them. Not one escaped her criticism. Yes, she found some fault with every passerby that she knew anything at all about. She thought then that she was merely acquainting her husband with those people, as he didn't mix with people as much as she did.

Did I say she criticized everybody? Well, there were two who passed that she didn't criticize. She knew them as well as the others, but she knew, too, that they were a bit lower in the so-called social scale than she was, and she knew that they had much less in the way of material things than she did. No doubt they had faults, but she passed up these people.

All of a sudden, she recalled what the speaker had said about criticism and jealousy. Her remarks were jealous remarks, and they did not increase her happiness. She could see that plainly now. She suddenly became bereft of conversation. The next evening as they sat on the porch, she called her husband's attention to meritorious traits of the people who passed. Not one jealous remark did she make. She went to bed a much happier young woman, and she awoke much more refreshed than she usually did.

THE 81st CONGRESS, economy-minded, had slashed more than two billion dollars from President Truman's budget requests, according to its own estimates when the Korean war struck on June 25. Then economy went out the window. As a result, the 81st congress passed the biggest "peace time" budget in history totaling more than $60 billion of which more than $40 billion goes for war—present, past and future.

Since the congress adjourned, the bureau of the budget, under terms of congressional law, announced that $280,271,335 had been slashed from funds appropriated and apportioned among the 31 non-defense agencies.

The budget figure for military expenses amounted to approximately $12,500,000,000 when the June outbreak of new war in Korea shattered the economy plans. As a result, military expenses jumped to $22,167,622,100, directly, and another $7 to $10 billion went to pay for expenses for past conflicts, including about $5.5 billion interest on the national debt.

A comparative war budget however shows that in 1944 the appropriations by the congress totaled $12,010,344,529 and for 1945 the total was $13,097,733,923. These figures plummeted to approximately $11 billion in 1947, $45 billion in 1948 and $50 billion in 1949. The total asked by President Truman in his budget request was $42,500,000,000 in general funds and he simultaneously pointed out there would be a financial deficit in fiscal 1951 since federal income would amount to only a little more than $37 billion.

Included in the total were two deficiency bills, one for $437,514,000 mostly for veterans administration and the atomic energy commission, and one for $248,701,000, largely for salaries and obligations of the government.

Since the 81st congress adjourned, this column has received several inquiries from readers, the answers to which may be of general interest. One letter asks whether or not the congress has closed down completely during the present adjournment. The answer is "No," since important committees are meeting regularly. These committees are now studying the draft law, crime syndicates, small business, labor problems and other matters.

By LITTLE HULL

THE MAJORITY of our citizens seem to have lost faith in the ability of our government to successfully combat the dangers which surround us. They appear to believe that a Republican congress could help our administration—and incidentally, the nation—by putting a stop to the economic blundering which is threatening to ruin us.

But so many of us won't be able to do anything about it on Nov. 7th because we have promised the kids a whole day's picnic. Some of us have to go all the way to Podunk to see our high school lick the Podunkian football team. And how about those ducks? They will be coming in over the blinds on Nov. 7th as ever before. So millions of us are damned if we are going to waste one of our few holidays when "my one vote won't make any difference!"

Of course if you have to do the housework you can't throw away your valuable time going in to the polls. (Though your one vote could conceivably save the kids a few years from now.) But it's a rainy day, and George has the car for the game, and you don't like to ask the Jones' to drive you into town.

And who are you going to vote for anyhow? The Republican campaign committee in your district hasn't even told you who is running for office—and why. And you don't want to go in and vote blind! And you certainly haven't time to inquire about the qualifications of the candidates!

So you, dear non-voter, are just one of several million who are going to desert their country when it needs them most. You don't realize what you are doing because you are not very—shall we say?—adroit from the eyes up. Maybe age, time or suffering will correct that, even you what you have done to your country and your children. But we doubt it.

"I REMEMBER"

From J. Elmer Camryn of Seattle, Wash.: I remember when every family had its own little coffee mill and roasted and ground coffee at home. A favorite dish was parched field corn, ground in the coffee mill and eaten cold with milk or cream. I can also remember the first packaged coffee—already roasted. It was put up by a firm called Arbuckle Brothers, and the name was "Ariosa Brand."

From Mrs. O. M. Edwards of Elbert, Colo.: I remember going to school in the Indian territory where there were no school boards to hire a teacher—nor were there any books to buy. Those who went to school paid a dollar a month for the privilege. We took what we could get in the way of books—any kind would do. We "learned" to stipher by doing it. "Rita" was copied to states from a farm on the blackboard. For our lunch we had a "bunk" of corn bread and a hard-boiled egg. Sometimes we had biscuits spread with wild plum butter. In the fall we had fried quail. By butcher's time we had hog meat. Some don't!

ALBANY-WATERFORD

—William L. Brown, Correspondent

Through funds available for R. D. routes considerable work has been done on the roads in Albany. More gravel has been applied to the Sawin Hill road in two days than during the last 10 years. If this work could continue each year it would be much appreciated by our mail carrier and those living on this road. Many cars have been damaged by large rocks in the road and scores have been stuck in the hill near the Dresser place ever since the rain last April. During the past two years bushes have grown so thickly in places that the paint on cars passing through has been ruined. The work just finished was under the supervision of Bert Brown of Bethel and a mighty fine job for the money spent.

Evelyn Brown shot a nice doe near Hunt's Corner last week.

Week and callers at Ernest Brown's were Holden Sawin, Stanley Wheeler, Walter Lord, Fred Wentworth, Donald Brown, Frank Hart, Mrs. Donald Graver, Marion Langway, N. A. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lord and Bonnie Ray.

WEST BETHEL SCHOOL NOTES

Grades 4-5-6

Those who have not been absent for the first nine weeks are: June Burris, Richard Farren, Philip Korhonen, and Eldred Rolfe from Grade 4; Jane Kneeland, David Head, Paul Korhonen and Charles Merrill from Grade 5; Gloria Burris from Grade 6. Several others have missed but one-half day.

Both rooms in the West Bethel school held Halloween parties on Tuesday afternoon. In the Intermediate Room ghosts, witches, gnomes, clowns, fat old ladies and lame old men joined in the many games and stunts on the program. Each one carried home with them fortune tellers and gypsies besides the memory of a gay and happy time.

Refreshments of pop-corn, fudge, other candies and apples, furnished by the parents, were much enjoyed.

The Sixth Grade is busy putting together a large map of South America.

As a boiler tender aboard ship and graduate of the Naval Maritime School at Great Lakes, Ted's duties consist mainly of standing watches and repair work on the boilers and pumps. He plans to enter civilian life at the expiration of his enlistment.

AGRICULTURAL OUTLOOK CONFERENCE BEING HELD THIS WEEK

Philip S. Parsons, farm management specialist, and Miss Constance Burgess, home management specialist, both of the Agricultural Extension Service, University of Maine, are taking part in the annual Agricultural Outlook Conference this week. Sessions are being held in Washington, D. C. On their return, Parsons and Miss Burgess will report on the agricultural and home-making outlook for the coming year, giving facts and figures presented by national authorities. The outlook for potato growing, dairying, poultry production, forestry, fruits and vegetables, clothing, food, family living and many other fields, will be discussed.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Miss Florence M. Young wish to thank the neighbors and friends, and members of the class of 1952, Gould Academy, who so generously helped us in our sorrow, and to ask their continued prayers to lighten our burden and help us to bear our loss uncomplainingly.

YOUNG ADVANCED TO BOILER TENDER, THIRD CLASS

Theodore A. Young, 20, Fireman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie L. Young of Elm Street, Bethel, was advanced in rating to Boiler Tender third-class while serving aboard the USS Taconic, a unit of the U. S. Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force, based at Norfolk, Va.

Young, who was graduated from Gould Academy, Bethel, in 1948, enlisted in the Naval Service September 15, 1948, and received his recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

Ted has participated in several training exercises since he reported for duty with the amphibious force, the largest being Operation POINTREX, a joint-manuever conducted in the Caribbean last year.

As a boiler tender aboard ship and graduate of the Naval Maritime School at Great Lakes, Ted's duties consist mainly of standing watches and repair work on the boilers and pumps. He plans to enter civilian life at the expiration of his enlistment.

ELEANOR GORDON GUILD HAS PARTY FOR CHILDREN

A Halloween party was held at the Methodist Church Monday evening for the members of the Eleanor Gordon Guild and their families. Prizes were won by Beverly Blake, Carol Koskile, Karen Clough, Linda Paine, Dick Paine, Terry Parsons, Bobby Saunders, Marjane Brown, Beth Brown, Rachel Keniston, Rebecca Keniston, Cris Angevine, Donald Angevine, Linda Kneeland, Martha Keniston, and Trafton Foster. Refreshments of cocoa, sandwiches, ice cream, cookies and doughnuts were served.

MEDICINE ON THE HOOK

When a doctor looks at a meat animal, what does he think about? In company with the layman, he probably thinks that the animal will one day be converted into some mighty fine steaks, chops, roast and other cuts.

On top of that, it is likely that the doctor looks on the animal as a highly important "assistant" in the practice of his profession.

The reason for this is that meat animals, and meat animals alone, are the source of more than 50 vital drugs and medicines. These include insulin, thyroid, liver extract and hormones. Other drugs of meat animal origin which are now in the experimental stage promise medical miracles. So far they are scarce, and research has not developed to the point where they are ready for general use.

But the indications are that they will either cure or alleviate a number of serious afflictions, such as arthritis, which has long presented grave problems to the medical fraternity.

To provide these medicines, millions of tiny glands from meat animals must be carefully saved and accumulated. The packing industry has taken that job upon itself, and it's no small order. As an example, to make one single ounce of insulin, the pancreas glands of 1500 cattle or 7500 pigs are needed. But the job is always done.

So the meat animal is more than a handsome collection of good things for the dinner table. He may be your all-important helper when you're sick.

It will be found that he who is most charitable in his judgment is generally the least unjust. — Southey.

The art of winning in business is in working hard — not taking things too seriously. — Elbert Hubbard.

Shades of Huey Long!!! J. Stalin: American Style

by
Dr. Alfred
P. Haake

Alfred P. Haake
EDITOR'S NOTE: Alfred P. Haake, Ph.D., Mayor of Park Ridge, Illinois, is a noted Economist, Business Consultant, Lecturer and Author.

The war with Korea and the possibility of war with Russia is making our collectivists almost impudent in their denial of freedom of expression to groups who oppose the administration ideas of what is best for us to know and have done for us.

The Buchanan Committee, allegedly having investigated lobbying in Washington, offers an apparently naive principle in the report which recently leaked out. It is this: that it is perfectly all right for New Dealers in employ of the Administration to lobby and spread propaganda for their pet political projects; but it is bad and wicked, and certainly improper for mere citizens who oppose New Deal socialism to manifest their opposition.

The language of this doctrine is worth studying; let's look at it: "So far as democratic responsibility is concerned, the pressure group and the executive agency live in different worlds. . . . If we were living in blander times, if the responsibilities of government were not so large and difficult, one might argue for a more fully operative system of separation of powers, checks and balances, and all the other textbook paraphernalia of negative government. But both our domestic society and our world position demand a government which is not afraid to speak its mind on those issues for which it has clear public support."

Believe it or not, you poor mere citizens who fail to agree with the bureaucrats who insist that Congress shall do as they want the Congress to do, are a "pressure group," or part thereof. Only the bureaucrats in the New Deal power machine are given the pure listing of "executive agency" with "democratic responsibility."

In the next place, the mere "textbook" views from the Constitution, which make it possible and legal for people to have ideas different from those of the New Dealers, must not stand in the way of anything the executive wants to do. But, even more appalling is the impertinent inference that all the causes which are taken up by the executive through its executive agencies, bureaucrats if you like plain English, already have "clear public support" — even before the executive agencies pour the weight of their propaganda on the Congress.

One is inclined to ask: "If the proposals of the executive agency already have 'clear public support,' why does the Buchanan Committee fear the information and 'pressure' of mere citizens who have to pay for the follies of those agencies?" But, it is not proper, apparently, for mere citizens to insist on their rights. Mr. Truman and his mentors know what is best. If you do not like that arrangement, or do not believe that the remedy for too much power is still more power, why then you probably are part of "the forces of privilege."

For sheer audacity, the report deserves a place among the somewhat less subtle pronouncements of such men as Mussolini, Goebbels, Hitler, Malik and Stalin. To them and their ilk, if you and I are sufficiently humble and grateful for the blessings of New Deal hypocrisy, belongs the right to lay down the law and way of life which only their supreme wisdom can conceive.

May I venture, humbly, a terrible warning? Whatever their intentions, or whatever the limits of their understanding, the bureaucrats with their mounting power are taking us down the road of socialism. Unless we throw this crowd out when the opportunity is ours legally to do so, we may as well forget free speech. They do not permit it in concentration camps anyway. One sometimes wishes that a merciful providence had helped the haberdashery business to be profitable.

An annual report of the Maine Agricultural Extension Service says, "Local leaders and their associates are the key workers in the 4-H club work. Without them there would be no clubs. To them utmost credit is due for giving their time and energy without reserve in the service of the young people in the communities where they live."

There is no road to success but through a clear, strong purpose. A purpose underlies character, culture, position, attainment of whatever sort. — T. T. Munger.

WEEKLY SHORT STORY
In this newspaper

MAYOR McGUP By John Jarvis

EXPECT RECORD DEER KILL—MANY BIG ONES SO FAR
Deer hunting, statewide, became legal in Maine Wednesday. Six northern counties have been open since Oct. 21 and the preview indicates that this may be another record year for white-tails hung up in Maine.

Early snow and rain have helped hunters so far this deer season. The white stuff makes tracking possible; rain softens the leaves and nimrods can walk up to the bucks and does more readily than when undergrowth is dry and crackly, they maintain.

One nice buck fell down into a well in eastern Maine recently according to Mrs. Frank Lydie, Woodland. She relates that a crowd gathered, including wardens. The latter gentlemen put a sling around the buck and everybody heaved-ho on a line. Peering into the well, one woman was heard to say:

"I'm very fond of deer liver. Before you give ALL of this buck to an institution, may I have the liver—please wardens?"

The wardens were too busy to reply. The buck cleared the well finally, however. They loaded the ring and were going over the big antlered buck for extent of injuries when the animal suddenly revived and with a majestic leap soared over the heads of the crowd and disappeared into the woods.

"There goes your liver, lady," somebody informed her.

The Maine Development Commission, which sponsors a "Biggest Bucks in Maine Club," stated that cards already have begun to appear on two-hundred pound deer taken in the six northern counties.

Bears are numerous, too, a commission writer stated. He said he observed five bears on one car, driving through Augusta recently. Not only do reports from wardens show that deer are numerous in southern counties, which open November 1, but they have been showing up well in the six counties which opened to hunting October 21.

DOUGLASSES CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Dana C. Douglass, Sr. observed their golden wedding anniversary Sunday at a small family gathering at the home, in Mayville of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dana C. Douglass, Jr., who recently moved here from Portland.

The four granddaughters performed a surprise quartet wedding ceremony with Cheryl, age 6, acting as minister, Barbara Lee, 2½, the bride, Diana, 5, the bridegroom, and Pamela, 18 months, the flower girl.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. Dana C. Douglass, Sr., Mrs. Edna Douglass, Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Westcott and great-nephew, Bradford Peck of Portland. Mr. and Mrs. Dana C. Douglass, Jr. and daughters, Cheryl, Diana, Barbara Lee and Pamela.

Mr. Douglass, Sr. was formerly executive vice-president of the Maine Central Railroad and has been retired since 1947. He and Mrs. Douglass have moved from Sebago Lake to Bethel for the winter months.

FIGHT FIRE EVERY WEEK

A short time ago, the 1950 observance of Fire Prevention Week took place. It is officially over. But, if Americans are at all interested in the health and welfare of themselves and their families, they will make every week a fire prevention week.

Safety from fire—whether in the home, on a farm, or in an industrial plant—can only be achieved by continuous day-in-and-day-out work. That doesn't mean it's a hard job. It isn't. For the most part, it's easy. But it is a job which can never be neglected if we wish to avoid possible disaster.

The home which is safe today can be extremely dangerous tomorrow. An electric wire becomes frayed—a stove or a heating plant goes out of adjustment—someone is careless with cigarettes—flammable materials are carelessly stored in closets and attics—explosive liquids and oil-soaked rags are placed where the touch of a spark would set them ablaze. It is "little things" such as these that are responsible for the majority of fires. And it is these "little things" which we must look out for—not during one week, but every week of the year.

The nation's fire loss continues at disgracefully high levels. Far worse is the fact that, each year, fire claims something like 10,000 lives—many of them infants and children. Many thousands more are permanently maimed and disfigured. This is the price we pay for our carelessness and ignorance. This is the grave problem which the annual fire prevention weeks are designed to help us solve. We can do it, if we only have the will.

Maine 4-H club boys and girls completed more than 6,000 projects in agriculture and homemaking in 1949.

The devotion of thought to an honest achievement makes the achievement possible.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Ever Try Tomato Aspic?

Party-looking but one of the simplest of all main dishes to make is EASY TOMATO ASPIC, a delicious result of gel-cookery. Two major ingredients—unflavored gelatine and tomato juice—with spices are all that's needed for these thrifty yet glamorous rings made and varied with this master recipe:

Easy Tomato Aspic
 1 envelope unflavored gelatine 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 1 1/2 cups tomato juice 1 teaspoon grated onion
 1 1/4 cups hot tomato juice 1/4 teaspoon salt

Soften gelatine in cold tomato juice. Add hot tomato juice and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Stir in lemon juice, onion and salt. Pour into 4 individual ring molds or in 1 pint mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens and fill centers with any of the following fillings.

To make 1 quart mold double recipe.

SUCCESSFUL PARENTHOOD

By
M. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS

WHEN A BABY IS BORN far from his grandparents' home, often one of the big events of his first year is the trip to visit relatives. Considering that a new husband usually quite at this introduction to the family of which he has become a part, one might think a baby would be overcome by it. Well, some babies don't take it too well, but others seem to thrive on meeting a lot of strange and admiring adults. But whether or not the visit is a delight for all or a trial to the baby and his parents depends as much on the months that have preceded this first away-from-home adventure as on the actual circumstances the baby encounters.

Recently we saw for the first time a little fellow of eight months who seemed to make each person he met feel specially liked. "I'm glad you're my relative," Johnny's smile seemed to say, and then he'd go off into the gayest chatter about the delights of his baby world which he wanted you to share. In a succession of calls from relatives, neighbors and friends he greeted at least 25 different persons in his joyous fashion. He took it for granted that everyone meant well by him and was frightened only once.

What was back of this assurance? Perfect health and intelligent care and been his good fortune, and a whole lifetime, even though it was only two thirds of a year in length, of being loved by his parents and of feeling enormously important to them. There wasn't an ounce of baby's basic needs.

At the world over it is true that a well-adjusted man is unstable in all his ways, like a wave on the streamlet, tossed hither and thither with every eddy of its tide. — W. H. Punderson

All successful individuals have become such by hard work, by improving moments before they pass into hours, and hours that other people may occupy in the pursuit of pleasure. — Mary Baker Eddy.

THE CONQUERORS

THREE WOMEN sat on the summer hotel porch.
 "Yes," said one of them, "I can hardly wait now to see Mr. Bascom. He's coming tonight to take me home. I hardly know how I've ever managed to remain away from James all this time. Really James and I are a ridiculously devoted couple."

A little self-conscious laugh ripped over her full face and she shook her plump shoulders. "I'm awfully dependent upon Mr. Bascom," she went on. "Indeed, he quite makes a baby of me. He's really beautiful isn't he, how a great strong man loves to pet the little woman who belongs to him?"

She glanced at Miss Winters, the only unmarried woman in the group, who being thus appealed to, said, "Yes, I suppose it's beautiful," but her tone was not one of conviction.

"Dear me, Mrs. Bascom, you shouldn't complain of your brief separation from Mr. Bascom," remarked the woman with a little girl in her lap. "You have been here only two weeks, and I've been away from home nearly all the summer. I never have done it before, and wouldn't this time, if Mr. Collins hadn't just insisted that baby and I needed the country air. But thank goodness, he's coming tonight."

"Edward's the most unselfish man that ever lived, I do believe. I know he's been absolutely devoted to this summer. I really think the loneliness of our apartment has effected his health. He expected to take a vacation and come up in August, but he simply couldn't get away. He's a remarkable business man. No one in the office can take his place."

She hugged her little girl and turned to Miss Winters with a smile. "Isn't it wonderful how some men will work for their wives and children?"

"It certainly is," responded Miss Winters, mechanically.

"I often say to Edward, that I can't understand why some rich girl didn't marry him for his good looks. He's the handsomest man, Miss Winters! Sometimes I wonder how ever he happened to pick out poor little me."

"My husband is extremely fine looking too," said Mrs. Bascom, "and he has such a brilliant mind. Indeed, his intellect quite overshadows mine, and to tell you the truth, he's a bit masterful in his way now and then. But we women need some one to lean on. We realize that our husbands know better than we do about many important matters, so we ought to defer to them. Don't you think so, Miss Winters?"

"I do," agreed Mrs. Collins, before Miss Winters had time to frame an answer. "I say to Edward, that he must decide everything for baby and me. He's the captain of our little family craft. Dear me, Miss Winters, it must be hard for you sometimes not to have a man to assume responsibilities. But, of course, unmarried women are quite independent nowadays," she added with patronizing kindness.

"Oh I manage to rub along," returned Miss Winters, but she rose from her seat and strolled away. Although she knew herself to be a busy and happy woman, she could not help feeling solitary in the presence of such enthusiastic wives.

A brisk tramp around the lake brought back her usual good spirits and it was with only a mild envy that she saw, as she neared the hotel at dusk, one of her companions of an hour or two earlier, hurrying down the driveway to meet the village motor-bus. She paused in the shadow of a tree in order not to intrude upon what she felt would be a tender reunion between husband and wife.

She was startled to see a fat bearded man alight from the bus and give Mrs. Collins a most casual kiss. "Well, I got here at last," he said jovially. "I thought I'd run up and see if you'd like to stay dinner andumh. You can just as well as not. I'm getting along tip-top." Was this the devoted husband who was pining away in the city for the wife of his bosom? Miss Winters asked herself this question with inward laughter.

Then she saw Mrs. Bascom striding down the path with a red headed little man following her as meekly as a pet lamb. Could that be the intellectual giant upon whose wisdom his wife depended for her guidance? Miss Winters sank upon the grass and rolled about in a paroxysm of mirth.

"And I was almost sorry for my state of single blessedness," she said to herself as she rose and went toward the hotel in joy and thankfulness.

"EASY DOES IT"
 BY HELEN HALE

IF YOU FEEL that your hose don't give you the long wear you feel they should, then start giving them judicious care which will keep them going to a gallant old age.

Three pairs of hose purchased in the same color will give the same amount of wear as nine pairs, each in a different color. One stocking always wears much longer than the other, and it can be teamed with several other hose, if they're alike in color.

Remove all rings, bracelets and ornaments from hands and fingers before putting on hose. Smooth fingernails with an emery board, too, so that there can be no catches in the hose.

Always fasten garters in the double hem at the top of the hose.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Chicken Yorkshire
 (Serves 6)
 2 cups diced, cooked chicken
 2 eggs
 1/2 cup drippings, melted
 1 cup milk
 1 cup sifted flour
 1 teaspoon baking powder
 1/2 teaspoon salt

Place chicken in bottom of greased casserole and set in moderate oven to heat. Beat eggs, drippings and milk together. Sift dry ingredients together and add to liquid ingredients. Beat until free from lumps. (Batter will be quite thin.) Pour over chicken and bake in a moderate (350 degree F.) oven for 30 minutes. Serve from baking dish with leftover gravy.

If the back garters come at the opening of the double hem, sew this up.

When drawing on the stockings, roll down to the toe and draw upwards easily. Before attaching the hose to garters, check seam line and straighten, if necessary.

For darning thread, choose a thread which is a little darker than the hose. The thread works in slightly lighter when you use it.

Your darning egg will be easier to use if one half of it is painted light, and the other dark. Use the dark side on light stocking and the light for dark stockings to enable you to see better.

SCHOOL NEWS

by Evelyn Curtis, Grade VI

This week we started work on our Hallowe'en party. We put up our decorations in Hallowe'en colors. We invited the Tubbs school to be with us on Wednesday evening for the fun. Each made a jack-o-lantern to enter in a contest. The prizes were won by Alice Hertell from Tubbs and Duane Hayes from our school. Everyone dressed in different and frightening costumes. We played games. Bobbing for apples interested us most. We counted our apple seeds for our fortunes. After having refreshments we went home. All had had a jolly time.

We had a vacation on Thursday and Friday for our teacher went to convention.

Ever Try Tomato Aspic?

Party-looking but one of the simplest of all main dishes to make is EASY TOMATO ASPIC, a delicious result of gel-cookery. Two major ingredients—unflavored gelatine and tomato juice—with spices are all that's needed for these thrifty yet glamorous jellies made and varied with this master recipe:

Easy Tomato Aspic

1 envelope unflavored gelatine 1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 1/2 cup c. tomato juice 1 teaspoon grated onion
1 1/4 cups hot tomato juice 1/2 teaspoon salt

Soften gelatine in cold tomato juice. Add hot tomato juice and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Stir in lemon juice, onion and salt. Pour into 4 individual ring molds or in 1 pint mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens and fill centers with any of the following fillings. YIELD: 4 servings.

To make 1 quart mold double recipe.

SUCCESSFUL PARENTHOOD

By
MRS. CATHERINE
CONRAD
EDWARDS

WHEN A BABY IS BORN far from his grandparents' home, often one of the big events of his first year is the trip to visit relatives. Considering that a new husband usually quails at this introduction to the family of which he has become a part, one might think a baby would be overcome by it. Well, some babies don't take it too well, but others seem to thrive on meeting a lot of strange and admiring adults. But whether or not the visit is a delight for all or a trial to the baby and his parents depends as much on the months that have preceded this first away-from-home adventure as on the actual circumstances the baby encounters.

Recently we saw for the first time a little fellow of eight months who seemed to make each person he met feel specially liked. "I'm glad you're my relative," Johnny's smile seemed to say and then he'd go off into the gayest chatter about the delights of his baby world which he wanted you to share. In a succession of calls from relatives, neighbors and friends he greeted at least 15 different persons in this joyous fashion. He took it for granted that everyone meant well by him and was frightened only once.

What was back of this assurance? Perfect health and intelligent care had been his good fortune, and a whole lifetime, even though it was only two thirds of a year in length, of being loved by his parents and of feeling enormously important to them. There wasn't an ounce of apprehensiveness in Johnny's mind, so far at least. This expectancy of good showed particularly in the way he accepted discomfort as being just part of the adventure. A borrowed little car proved much too large so that his body was jostled fantastically—but Johnny thought it was fun. "Oh, well, these folks aren't used to babies but they mean well," he seemed to be thinking, then he'll give you an enchanting smile, like an "A" for effort.

But now to more practical aspects of taking a baby visiting. A lot of learning will be an inevitable part of this new experience, so try not to make any radical changes in his personal life. For example, it was about time when Johnny left home for him to change from his formula to cow's milk. But this doctor suggested that his mother wait until after they were back home again to introduce any diet changes.

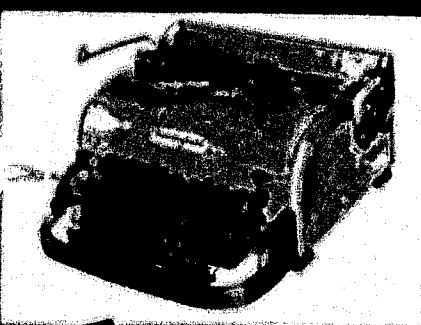

The amount of his food was kept the same, too. That is, Johnny had been for some time on a self-demand four hour schedule. This was maintained, though the actual time of feedings varied considerably from day to day. He didn't have food offered as a pacifier, as used to happen when several adults were looking after a baby. Back, too, were undisturbed, no matter who might call, though Johnny obligingly took several short sleeps during the day instead of two long ones as had been his custom at home. In other words, there was give and take—Johnny adapted himself to strange surroundings and the adults adapted themselves to a baby's basic needs.

All the world over it is true that a double-minded man is unstable. In all his ways, like a wave on the strand, toward bitter and thither with every eddy of its tide.

—W. H. Furness

THE CONQUERORS

By Henry Suter

THREE WOMEN sat on the summer hotel porch. "Yes," said one of them, "I can hardly wait now to see Mr. Bascom. He's coming tonight to take me home. I hardly know how I've ever managed to remain away from James all this time. Really James and I are a ridiculously devoted couple."

A little self-conscious laugh rippled over her full face and gently shook her plump shoulders. "I'm awfully dependent upon Mr. Bascom," she went on. "Indeed, he quite makes a baby of me. It's really beautiful isn't it, how a great strong man loves to pet the little woman who belongs to him?"

She glanced at Miss Winters, the only unmarried woman in the group, who being thus appealed to, said, "Yes, I suppose it's beautiful," but her tone was not one of conviction.

"Dear me, Mrs. Bascom, you shouldn't complain of your brief separation from Mr. Bascom," remarked the woman with a little girl in her lap. "You have been here only two weeks, and I've been away from home nearly all the summer. I never have done it before, and wouldn't this time, if Mr. Collins hadn't just insisted that baby and I needed the country air. But thank goodness, he's coming tonight too."

"Edward's the most unselfish man that ever lived, I do believe. I know he's been absolutely desolate this summer. I really think the loneliness of our apartment has affected his health. He expected to take a vacation and come up in August, but he simply couldn't get away. He's a remarkable business man. No one in the office can take his place." She hugged her little girl and turned to Miss Winters with a smile. "Isn't it wonderful how some men will work for their wives and children?"

"It certainly is," responded Miss Winters, mechanically. "I often say to Edward, that I can't understand why some rich girl didn't marry him for his good looks. He's the handsomest man, Miss Winters! Sometimes I wonder how ever he happened to pick out poor little me."

"My husband is extremely fine looking too," said Mrs. Bascom, "and he has such a brilliant mind. Indeed, his intellect quite over-

Make a Sock

EASY DOES IT

BY HELEN HALE

IF YOU FEEL that your hose don't give you the long wear you feel they should, then start giving them judicious care which will keep them going to a gallant old age.

Three pairs of hose purchased in the same color will give the same amount of wear as nine pairs, each in a different color. One stocking always wears much longer than the other, and it can be learned with several other hose, if they're alike in color.

Remove all rings, bracelets and ornaments from hands and fingers before putting on hose. Smooth finger/nails with an emery board, too, so that there can be no catch in the hose.

Always fasten garters in the double hem at the top of the hose.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Chicken Yorkshire

(Serves 8)

2 cups diced, cooked chicken

2 eggs

1/2 cup drippings, melted

1 cup milk

1 cup sifted flour

1 teaspoon baking powder

1/2 teaspoon salt

Leftover gravy

Place chicken in bottom of greased casserole and set in moderate oven to heat. Beat eggs, drippings and milk together. Sift dry ingredients together and add to liquid ingredients. Beat until free from lumps. (Batter will be quite thin.) Pour over chicken and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 30 minutes. Serve from baking dish with leftover gravy.

If the back garters come at the opening of the double hem, sew this up.

When drawing on the stockings, roll down to the toe and draw upwards easily. Before attaching the hose to garters, check seam line and straighten, if necessary.

For darning thread, choose a thread which is a little darker than the hose. The thread works in slightly lighter when you use it.

Your darning egg will be easier to use if one half of it is painted light, and the other dark. Use the dark side on light stocking and the light for dark stockings to enable you to see better.

Nobody's Business

Improvement of the week is the filling of the old cellar on the Casco bank lot, upper Main Street. When this is grassed over, evidence of a building on the lot in the past will be erased. For a long time the property was only an eyesore for those who appreciated village attractiveness, but in recent years it has been improved near the sidewalk. The building which occupied the lot contained two stores, dentists' offices and an apartment. It burned in the early morning of Feb. 27, 1918.

The new street signs on Main and Railroad Streets are attractive and convenient for strangers. Localities are wondering if the supporting iron posts, already rusty, are to be painted.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare.

In one of his recent columns, Walter Lippmann discussed the changed concept of war that the Korean conflict brought to this country. He wrote, "All of us have to learn about the kind of warfare which, though it is scorned and deplored and even outlawed by the military scientists of Western Europe and America, is the normal and fundamental technique of war throughout the Eurasian continent."

"The Communists call it 'people's war.' We call it guerrilla war."

"Though American experience of guerrilla warfare is very limited and long out of date, guerrilla warfare of one kind or another is the normal form of combat in most of Asia. It is the way people with a primitive technology fight."

"Our extremely advanced and complicated military equipment, which require a high industrial development to make it and to service it, is most effective against countries which also fight with complicated weapons made by a concentrated and complicated industrial system. The more primitive the armies with which we have to deal the less effective are the big engines of war."

Here is one of the gravest problems that war in any part of Asia presents us with. As against the Asiatics, we are hopelessly outnumbered in the sphere of manpower. We have planned, and to a certain limited extent built, a military machine which, as Mr. Lippmann pointed out, depends upon the most intricate form of weapons, and which is designed to take full advantage of the miraculously produced American manufacturing establishment. The atom bomb, the hydrogen bomb, the guided missile, the meteoric bomber of vast range and carrying capacity — there are all weapons devised in the event of a traditional war with another great and cohesive nation. In Korea, we could not have used the bomb even had we wished to. It is reported that General Bradley has said that we must not let ourselves be led by intermittent "police actions" in Asia. He was undoubtedly thinking of the terrible dangers of our engaging in a series of guerrilla wars. For, in these wars, manpower — the sheer weight of numbers — is the big factor.

FARMERS' FAIR AT U. OF M.

COMES NOVEMBER 18

Saturday, Nov. 18 is the date of the annual Farmers' Fair and Cattle Show at the Agricultural Club at the University of Maine. The Future Farmers of America judging contest will attract students from many Maine secondary schools, and the other contests, exhibits, and entertainers will draw hundreds of spectators. Old-fashioned square dancing will be in order for the folks dressed and plaid shirted folks attending the Calico Ball and Calico Queen crowning that evening.

There is every reason to believe that the Russians — whether or not they start any more incursions of the Korean sort — would like nothing better.

In short, orthodox military theory has received the severest sort of a shock. It was designed to deal with the traditional war, the war of rules, the so-called "civilized" war. The theory is being overhauled in the face of the realities. At the same time, great changes in our diplomatic and foreign policy are also slowly coming into being. In this grim, strange world the diplomats and the military men must walk side by side.

STATE OF MAINE PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, it has been the custom since the pilgrims first came to America to devote one day of giving thanks for our numerous blessings; and

WHEREAS, world affairs make us realize more forcibly the many causes for rejoicing that we, living in a democracy, are fortunate to possess; and

WHEREAS, our State has once again produced an outstanding harvest; and

WHEREAS, we, as a people should acknowledge the blessings the Almighty Lord has bestowed upon us and offer our humble thanks to God and pray that people everywhere may some day be equally endowed as are we, of this nation;

NOW THEREFORE, I, Frederick G. Payne, Governor of the State of Maine, do hereby proclaim Thursday, November 23, 1950, as and request that appropriate observances be planned in our churches, homes and schools on this sacred and traditional day in appreciation of our divine benefits.

Given at the office of the Governor at Augusta, and sealed with the Great Seal of the State of Maine, this eleventh day of October, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the One Hundred and Seventy-fifth.
